Former Weil Gotshal & Manges Senior Litigator Joins De Novo Legal as Managing Director-Project Management

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)--De Novo Legal, a leading national attorney document review and electronic discovery provider, announced that Edward J. Burke has joined the company as Managing Director-Project Management.

Formerly a litigator with Weil Gotshal & Manges and other major firms, Mr. Burke has more than fifteen years of litigation experience, handling both complex commercial and intellectual property matters. Mr. Burke recently served as Joint Liaison Defense Counsel for electronic discovery and data issues in a RICO action brought by a class of all US doctors against ten healthcare insurance companies. Weil's client prevailed on summary judgment. Mr. Burke also successfully litigated the first trade secrets and copyright cases involving the hacking of DVD encryption codes.

"I believe that my experience will help De Novo Legal's clients build defensible and consistent approaches to document review and electronic discovery."

"Ed is a great addition to our Senior Management team," commented Rob Singer, De Novo Legal's Chief Executive Officer. "With strong litigation experience coupled with a thorough understanding of the entire discovery and document review process, Ed will further enhance our project management services and commitment to quality, consistency, efficiency and client service. Ed has been in the trenches on major cases with significant potential exposure. He understands the demands and risks involved in document review and electronic discovery and knows how to manage both the legal and practical issues."

Mr. Burke will work with the De Novo Legal team to enhance the project management policies and procedures that are hallmarks of the Company's systematic approach to document review and electronic discovery. From early case assessment to the implementation of consistent document review and quality control protocols, Mr. Burke will draw on his extensive litigation experience to manage the entire process.

"Project management is a critically important piece of a company's overall litigation strategy," said Mr. Burke. "I believe that my experience will help De Novo Legal's clients build defensible and consistent approaches to document review and electronic discovery."

"I look forward to working with Ed again and, together, delivering high quality and cost efficient work product and exceeding client expectations," added Mr. Singer. Prior to joining De Novo Legal as CEO, Mr. Singer was the Executive Director of Weil Gotshal.
